

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

The directors of the Lancaster Mill & Elevator Co. met on Tuesday and elected Mr. E. Brown as superintendent and manager for the ensuing year.

—Miss Georgie and Tommie Moore entertained the club at their country home on last Tuesday evening (and Wednesday morning) and judging with what reluctance the guests took their leave they must have been overwhelmed with enjoyment.

—Some of our citizens move so often and so fast between Lancaster and Middleboro that before our report comes out of their return home they have gone back to Middleboro and vice versa. John Owsley came home from St. Louis Wednesday evening.

The editor of the News told us a day or two before his last issue that it would contain his valedictory, though he has threatened so often to throw up the sponge—then catch his breath and come again, that we hoped another imaginary trouble, like those of the past, was hanging over his sanctum and that a good night's rest would dispel the gloom, hence we did not report the information imparted. We appreciate the fact that Mr. Hughes has labored under many difficulties in the establishment of a democratic paper here. But "Birds" like "he has held his nozzle to the bank until the last gull's ashore."

Chapter 7.

An act to repeal an act entitled, "an act to authorize the people of Lincoln county to vote on prohibiting the sale of liquors and fixing the penalty for the sale of liquors in said county," approved April 14th, 1889, said county to vote on said repeal.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, 1. That an act entitled "an act to authorize the people of Lincoln county to vote on prohibiting the sale of liquors and fixing the penalty for the sale of liquors in said county," approved April 14th, 1889, be and is hereby repealed.

3. The County Court of Lincoln county shall order an election to be held at the various voting places of said county on Saturday the 10th day of February, 1890, at which all legally qualified voters of the county shall be entitled to vote, and shall appoint the necessary officers to hold said election. The polls shall be kept open from 7 o'clock before noon until 6 o'clock after noon, and the question shall be propounded by the officers to each voter, "Are you for or against repealing the present prohibitory liquor law of Lincoln county?" and his vote shall be recorded according to his answer.

4. The poll books of the election ordered by the third section of this act shall be returned to the office of the Clerk of Lincoln county by Wednesday after the election, sealed and signed as other poll books are required to be by law, and shall be opened and compared by the Judge, Sheriff and Clerk of said court, the result ascertained and declared by an entry on the order book of the county court. If a majority of the votes cast are in favor of a repeal of the prohibitory law aforesaid, then the first section of this act shall take effect forthwith, but if a contrary result be declared, then the said first section of this act shall be inoperative.

5. Whatever may be the result of said election the county court may, not less than three years thereafter and upon each recurring three years, upon the written application of not less than 500 of the legal and qualified voters of Lincoln county, order an election as provided for in section three of this act, at which the same question shall be submitted to the voters of said county and the result whereof shall be ascertained and declared and have the same effect as provided for in section four of this act. Provided, however, that no election shall be had under this section until at least 20 days notice thereof shall have been given by publication in the Stanford Interior Journal, or a newspaper published at Stanford, Kentucky.

Harvey Myers, Speaker House of Representatives, Approved Jan. 8, 1890. J. W. Bryan, Speaker of Senate. By the Governor, GEO. M. ADAMS, Secretary of State.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—Henry G. Plummer, a citizen of the Cedar Creek locality, died suddenly Sunday night of pneumonia. He leaves a wife and two bright children.

—Last week John Anderson bought of George Holmes 14 acres of land near the depot, on which he will begin at once the erection of a commodious dwelling.

—That rapidly-spreading disease, the influenza, or la grippe, has struck us broad-sided and several of our citizens are suffering from its peculiar symptoms.

—J. W. James, who went to Florida a couple of months ago, writes back to his friends here that he has struck a bonanza. He has purchased 800 acres of land on which are large deposits of phosphates. This he proposes to get at and ship as a fertilizer. We hope Mr. James will realize millions on the enterprise.

—J. H. Hilton, who opened a store here some months ago, removed this week his stock of goods to Dillon's Station, where he will become a more extensive dealer. Mr. Hilton while here made many friends by his straightforward business course and elicited a splendid patronage. His obliging clerks, Messrs. Davis and Brooks, will accompany him.

—After a lingering illness, Miss Sue Lindsey died Friday night at her home in the suburbs of town. She was one of a family of six girls and up to two years ago gave promise of as long life as any of her sisters, but that slowly-advancing, yet none the less fatal, disease, consumption, crept into her frame and stole the bloom from her cheek and the elasticity from her step and hurried her to an untimely grave. Joining the Baptist church in girlhood, she was at the time of her death a consecrated christian woman. After funeral services at the house by Rev. W. T. B. White, the remains were interred in the family burying ground. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of the community in their hour of sorrow.

—Miss Mary Newland has returned to school at Richmond. Mrs. Brooks and daughter, Miss Mollie, are back from a two weeks' visit to relatives in New Albany, Ind. Glen Johnson, that affable commercial fellow, was here this week. W. H. Pettus is up on the C. V. Branch, holding down Flat Lick agency. Messrs. Joe Colby, Henry Turner and J. T. Chadwick went to Middleboro Monday night. The former will expatiate with a view of locating; the latter will continue his journey to Tazewell, Tenn., to visit his mother. Pretty Miss Pearl Trumbull is with her sister, Mrs. Clara Boone, at Maywood. Miss Lida Elboston is homeward after a delightful visit to relatives at Kirksville. Judge T. W. Varnon, D. R. Carpenter and W. H. Miller were here Saturday, speering the palms of the dead people.

—Spire J. A. Chappell, whom everybody knows for the interest he has taken in politics, is being solicited by friends to become a candidate for assessor on an independent ticket. We asked this spire how about it in a recent interview when he delivered himself of those words, which though laconic, are strong and full of party fealty. "I have always been a democrat of the same true blue quality as McCrory, Buckner and the other worthies under whom we are enjoying honest government, and I do not propose to abandon the ranks for the sake of tasting a morsel of potage, however delicious it be. I imagine the dry bones of Thomas Jefferson would rise up out of their charnel house to brand me a traitor. No! whatever be my fault you will never hear of me side-tracking my vote when it is needed to push the old democratic wheels up the grade. My fortune is wedded to the democracy and whether I be president or 'unkindled, unroofed or unknown, it and it alone must decide." Possessing such loyalty and wielding as he does his party's baton in the knoll portion of the county, Chappell must sooner or later come in for his share of party recognition.

—Near Chappell's Gap, three miles south of here, a terrible tragedy was enacted last Thursday night. A party of young people gathered at the house of Joseph Estus, a German, to enjoy mirth-making and dancing. Annie Bowman, the pretty step-daughter of Estus, had, it seems, invited the revelers and had given a special invitation to Jim Nick Smith, a royster-buyster kind of a fellow, whose company, on account of alleged intimacy of the pair, Estus had warned his step-daughter not to keep on pain of death. Smith, with some companions, came to the house drinking and because he could not dance so often with the bewitching Annie as he wished, raised a row with some of the dangers. A scene followed, and Smith to intimidate the crowd pulled his pistol and discharged it toward the door, but the ball instead of penetrating the punchcocks, buried itself in the calf of Smith's leg. He fell on the bed crying that he was shot, but believing this was only a trick of Smith's to increase the uproar, the wranglers did not abate the racket. Estus becoming exasperated now got down his gun to disperse the crowd and restore order in his home, when the weapon was accidentally discharged, pouring its contents into the breast of his step-daughter, Annie, who at that fatal moment happened to enter at the opposite door. With an exclamation of "Oh, God! I am killed," she sank down and expired in the doorway. The crowd fled from the house, leaving the old man to take up his murdered child. He has been arrested for the deed, it being claimed that he had threatened the girl the same day. The general opinion, however, is that the man is innocent. Whisky was at the bottom of the whole affair.

W. H. Miller Accepts the Call.

STANFORD, Jan. 15.—Messrs. G. F. Baker, M. S. Bastin, J. T. Terry, W. H. Young, A. J. Henry, J. H. Carter, Anderson Leach, Julius Gross, Jas. Cook and other voters of the Highland precinct.—

In responding to your recent kind and complimentary call upon me to become a candidate to represent Lincoln county in the constitutional convention, should it be called by the legislature now in session, permit me, first, to thank you most profoundly for this emphatic utterance and proof of your good will and confidence and this expression of your intention to honor me by a promotion to this responsible position. Since the beginning of my business career, for more than 20 years, I have been intimately associated with you in business, official duties, enterprises, pleasures and friendly companionship. During all this period, you have been so loyal and devoted in your friendship for me as to excuse, at all times, my mistakes and my follies and to encourage me in every proper purpose and undertaking. You have known me as intimately and thoroughly as the people of any section of the county, and now, under these circumstances, to be singled out and selected by you for this office of eminent responsibility and sacred trust is a compliment and kindness to be prized above all estimate and to be grateful for beyond all power of expression. The distinction you show me is not only proof of your devotion to me, but likewise an acknowledgment of my devotion to you and my efforts to advance and promote your interests and happiness through many years of mutual confidence, and you emphasize and make the assurance doubly sure by having it to come from citizens of every occupation and all political parties. Should I have the opportunity to serve you, it will be my greatest encouragement and highest incentive to efforts of noble and patriotic conduct.

Before receiving your call I had considered this matter, and now in response say to you that if the convention is ordered, I will be a candidate, and with this statement I am able to say further that I have received many flattering and encouraging assurances of support from every section of the county—and from one, at least, the neighborhood of my boyhood—quite as emphatic and gratifying as from yourselves.

If elected, I promise, in advance, so far as I am able, with the assistance of those associated with me, to frame a constitution that will be a guaranty of good and economical government, securing to every citizen equal rights and privileges and security in life, liberty and property, and especially to protect the weak against the encroachments of the strong, and to see that no citizen shall by the exercise of any governmental power be deprived of his property without due process of law, without just and valuable compensation being first made to him. All the energy and capacity I have shall be faithfully devoted to your interests. Every idea and suggestion of my constituents will receive proper consideration. I will inform myself thoroughly upon their wishes and opinions and endeavor to shape my conduct thereby, as far as possible, and in all respects, to the best of my ability, serve you constantly, industriously and usefully in my efforts to frame for you a supreme law that will keep our great State abreast of the times and secure good order, education of the people, an advancement of wealth by proper efforts, with an equal chance for all, and generally a promotion of happiness. But I desire to say thus early, that the wild, visionary and speculative tendency of this period, which oftentimes is fruitful of a reckless and wasteful expenditure of public money, wrong from the people by taxation, loudly calls for and demands a careful and well-guarded restriction of the power of taxation to prevent under a pretense of its exercise, robbery and spoliation, and my intention would be to protect you in this direction. It has generally been a maxim that capital is timid and labor is aggressive. But for the last few years the order is reversed. Capital has become the aggressor, and by aggregating itself through the medium of "combinations" and "trusts" it now seeks to aggrandize and make itself the master instead of the servant of the industries and business transactions of the country, the evils of which are already as oppressive as they are apparent. Protection and security is needed in this direction and will be afforded to you should I be your delegate, so far as I should be able to accomplish it. Again thanking you for your kind consideration, I remain Very faithfully your friend and obedient servant, W. H. MILLER.

In Memoriam.

At the home of Mr. Lewis Dudderar, on the last day of the old year, near midnight, there fell asleep to know no earthly waking, the subject of this sketch—Miss Mary Johnson, after a lingering and painful illness—aged 68 years, since June 1st, 1889.

"Aunt Mary Johnson," as she was familiarly known, was born and reared near where she died; a part of her life was spent in Crab Orchard, but for the past 15 years she has been an inmate of the family of Mr. Dudderar, and there were no visitors at "The Mill" but to whom Aunt Mary's was a welcome presence. She will be sadly missed by these and by the members of the family, to whom, though not related by any tie of blood, she was very near; but most severely will her loss be felt by the child of her adoption, who, during her life, has known no other mother.

Having never married, Aunt Mary's life was devoted to others. She thought no sacrifice too great when thereby those she loved were benefited. Energetic and unselfish, industrious and kind-hearted, honest and true, her life was one of usefulness.

A loving tribute was paid to her memory by Elder Livingston, for whom she had held a life-long regard, and her mortal remains were laid to rest near Goshen, of which church she was a member. She was loved and is mourned by all who knew her and yet we sorrow not as those without hope. Her earthly sufferings over, we know she is happy in the "Home beyond the river."

"'Tis sweet to think when all earth's cares, And all life's pains are past, We'll lay our every burden down, And calmly rest at last."

We travel many a rugged road, Through many a desert drear, And oftentimes our hearts are faint, While wandering weary here.

'Tis sweet to think how sorrow's night Will brighten into day, As softly fades the lingering light, We'll breathe our life away.

And then amid the joys of heaven, We'll greet the loved and lost, And know the bliss of souls forgiven, With those we've mourned for most.

SEVEN night's storm was wide spread and at numerous points exceedingly severe and destructive. The towns of Clinton and Wickliffe, in Hickman and Ballard counties, suffered terribly. At the former 11 persons were killed out right and 53 injured, several of whom have since died. Some 70 old houses were either blown down or had their roofs taken off and the destruction to property is estimated at $100,000. At Wickliffe there was no loss of life, but many persons were hurt and much property destroyed. The scenes at Clinton almost beggar description. Everybody was panic stricken and the wails of the dying and injured added to the horror of the hour. The storm lasted less than 15 minutes, but it was an eternity almost to those who experienced it.

It is Senator-elect Calvin S. Brice, now the legislature of Ohio having conferred that honor on him Tuesday by a majority of all the votes of the body. Ex-Gov. Foster received the vote of the republican minority in spite of Foraker, Halstead and his other traducers. This is particularly tough on Halstead, who expected to be elected Senator in case the republicans had a majority, and the fact that he could not even secure the empty honor of a complimentary vote shows that the desire to vindicate him from the censure put upon him by the Senate refusing to confirm him. Minister to Germany, is not at all shared by his party.

CONGRESSMAN WILSON has a bill before Congress to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to refund to each State 50 per cent. of the internal revenue tax paid within that State from and after the passage of the bill. The money, according to the provisions of the bill, shall be accredited to the State and may be drawn by its authorized agents to be utilized by the State for whatever purpose the State legislature may direct. If the bill becomes a law it will put many millions in Kentucky's treasury, but there are numerous objections to it and it will hardly pass.

THE American Casualty Insurance and Security Company has been organized at Baltimore, which is remarkable for the fact that it will insure almost anything under the sun from loss. Besides buildings and all kinds of property, it will insure the wages of employees, choses in action, credits, profits, &c. It will also guarantee against embezzlement, theft, breaches of trust and contract and many and diverse other things. It does not say that it would insure every old maid a husband, but we suppose that is understood.

HON. JAMES B. McCREARY has already been called upon from every county in his district to make the race again and he said to the Times that he was willing. No man has ever had a more enthusiastic and solid following among his constituents than the gentleman from old Madison.—Washington Cor. Louisville Times. Correct, and they are going to keep him in Congress until he is chosen to the Senate to succeed Mr. Beck.

It is urged against Hugh Mulholland, Jr., whom the president appointed postmaster at Paducah this week, that he is not a citizen of the town. This racket won't work, however. If you don't believe it ask the two kickers here. There is a more serious charge against the other appointee, M. F. Pedigo, at Glasgow. He is charged with being a defaulter, but it is likely a weak invention of his enemies. There is always a dog fight when the pie is fed out.

FORAKER is only a private citizen now and a mighty small one at that. It was thought at one time by some people, including himself, that when he let go the universe would tilt over, but four days have gone by and it still seems right side up with care. It is hoped that the obscurity into which he will go now will be so dense that he will never be seen again in public office.

Two Missouri physicians, not being able to kill the people fast enough by their ordinary methods, got to shooting at each other, but instead of injuring themselves, shot three bystanders. They will probably be punished for this, whereas they might have killed the same citizens with impunity by negligence and physic.

THE House by a vote of 142 to 126 refused to appropriate $75,000 to reimburse those members who lost their pay by reason of Silcott's rascality. Finley alone of the Kentucky delegation voted for the proposed steal. Mr. Wilson casting his vote with the democrats, who generally voted against it.

Here it is again and it has the familiar look of an old friend. It is cabled from Vienna that in a short time the Star of Bethlehem will be visible, making its seventh appearance since the birth of Christ. It comes once in 315 years and is of wondrous brilliance for the space of three weeks, then it wanes and disappears after 17 months. It will be a sixth star added to the five fixed stars in the constellation Cassiopeia while it remains in sight.

LEGISLATIVE DOINGS.

—The bill asking the repeal of the tax on tobacco was tabled 54 to 17.

—A bill to increase the treasurer's salary from $3,200 to $5,700 is being discussed.

—Senator Mulligan has up that old chestnut, the removal of the capital to Lexington.

—The General Assembly appropriated $10,000 for the sufferers by the storm in Southern Kentucky.

—Edward O. Leigh, late editor of the Paducah Standard, has been appointed Second Assistant Clerk of the Senate.

—A bill to punish tramps and vagrants with from 5 to 50 lashes on their naked backs was presented by Mr. Cooper, of Marion.

—The Boyle county prohibition bill was again postponed till next Wednesday. The legislature appears to be decidedly anti-prohibition.

—The governor re-appointed W. B. Fleming, of Louisville; I. A. Spalding, of Morgantown, and John F. Hager railroad commissioners of Kentucky.

—Many members of the legislature are opposed to the convention. Mr. R. E. Warren said to a reporter: "I voted for the convention both times, but I am against calling it, unless it is clearly shown that a majority of the legal voters have voted for it. I don't want any unconstitutional convention."

—Mr. Richardson, of Meade, is out for a "record" and he presented a bill requiring that banks be taxed at the real instead of face value of their stock and that their surplus shall also be taxed. Cashiers are to make reports of their value under penalty of forfeiture of charter, &c.

—By Mr. Warren: A bill to amend the local option laws, limiting the time for which a vote on local option shall be binding to three instead of two years, forbidding wholesale whisky dealers to sell in quantities less than five gallons, and enacting that all local option elections shall be held at regular elections.

—Mr. Warren offered a resolution, which was adopted, calling upon the Secretary of State to furnish the total registration of votes not cast when the people voted upon a call for a Constitutional Convention, the object being to see by what percentage the votes cast exceeded registrations not marked voted. There is said to be very decided opposition developing against the calling of the convention.

(To the Editor of the Interior Journal.)

FRANKFORT, Jan. 13.—Sitting in my desk this morning, my mind's eye running over the general make up of the House, my thoughts were directed to the editor of the Interior Journal and his neighboring representatives and I involuntarily came to the conclusion that the group from your section was one you would be proud to mention. Just run your mind over the list and see who they are: Warren, of Lincoln, Stephenson, of Mercer, Welch, of Jessamine, Bruce of Boyle, Smith, of Madison, and Tomlinson, of Garrard. While some of the counties may have had their equals, I venture the assertion that it has been a long time since the entire group of counties was so ably represented. And look over the list of committees and see how they were regarded by the Speaker and his advisors in the make up of the list. Besides occupying good places on other committees, Mr. Warren is Chairman of the Committee on Criminal Laws; Welch is Chairman of Railroads; Bruce is Chairman on Printing; Stephenson Chairman of Codes of Practice; Tomlinson Chairman of Committee on Claims; and Smith Chairman of Committee on Constitutional Convention.

Yours, G. R. KELLER.

—F. S. McKernan and S. W. Goode, leading merchants at Adairville, have assigned. They are the largest failures ever known in that section.

—The legislature of West Virginia is in session to determine which shall be governor, Fleming or Godd, with the chances strong in favor of the former.

—The black measles is epidemic at Fordsville, Ohio county, and vicinity. There are 25 cases in the little community. Several deaths have resulted.

—Dick Hawes, the Birmingham fiend, who murdered his wife and two children and threw their bodies into a pond, will be hanged on the 28th of February.

—The Naval Board of Policy will recommend, in their report to the Secretary of the Navy, the construction of 92 vessels at a cost of $280,000,000. Whew!

—Last week 1,424 persons died in New York city, nearly double the number in the same week of 1889. The increase of deaths is due to acute respiratory affections.

—The Court of Appeals finds nothing to reverse Tom O'Brien's case on and he will hang soon at Lexington for one of the most cowardly murders ever committed.

—Ames A. Lincoln, a young inmate of a New York hospital, saved the life of an asphyxiated girl by allowing the physicians to transfer two pounds of his blood into her body.

—The suspension bridge at Cincinnati is a paying institution. Its net earnings in 1889, were $115,032.22, on which a dividend of 15 per cent. was declared. It is practically clear of debt.

—A large publishing establishment, the Baptist Book Concern, is shortly to be started in Louisville. The capital stock will be $100,000 and prominent Baptists are its stockholders.

—Gov. Buckner ought to let the law take its course or commute the sentence of John Green, sentenced to hang at Georgetown. He has again postponed the execution, this time to February 26.

—Conklin, Burke and O'Sullivan, the Cronin murderers, have been lodged in the Joliet penitentiary to spend the rest of their days. Kunze, who was given three years, has been granted a new trial.

—In New York State Wednesday five generations of the family clustered about a chair over a century old in which sat Mrs. Mott upon her hundredth anniversary, dressed in the rich habiliments of her early womanhood.

—At elevator at Baltimore burned causing a loss of $750,000. The British steamship Sacrobosco, which was lying alongside, was totally destroyed, involving a loss of $150,000. Three sailors are thought to have lost their lives.

—The losses by fire in the United States for 1889 are stated at $129,350,007, on which an insurance of $79,397,048 was paid. The losses in Kentucky amounted to $3,885,375, upon which insurance to the amount of $2,010,819 was paid.

—The Cincinnati Enquirer tells of a fatal accident, which occurred to Rev. J. W. Johnson at Huntington, W. Va., while he was being raised to the Royal Arch degree in Masonry. The paper claims that the person taking the degree is let down by a winchless into a vault, which is to represent the ruins of King Solomon's temple, which he is to search for the ark of the covenant. In letting Mr. Johnson down the rope broke and he was precipitated to the bottom of the vault and received injuries from which he died after great suffering.

Didn't Appreciate the Compliment.

I overheard a remark by a lady a few evenings since at a reception. The lady in question is in the neighborhood of 40, still charming in face, figure and repartee. A gentleman who had not seen her for twenty years approached and hesitatingly asked: "Is this Mrs. A.?" "It is." "I know you at once," the gentleman answered. "I have not seen you for twenty years, and you look just the same now as you did when a girl." "Graciously," replied the lady, "you don't say so. What an old looking girl I must have been."—Truth.

Mr. Bart Miller (gunning down at Asheville)—You're the worst one I ever shot over! Why don't you go into the bushes and hunt instead of dancing around me like that?—Judge.

What Could John Do?

John—Clara, I've got an important question to ask you.
Clara—I know what it is. You want me to be your wife. I dreamed it. Well, take me.
John (rather nonplussed)—You dreamed it?
C.—Yes; I dreamed last night that you asked me what I am asking you, and that you took me in your arms and kissed me after I said you—

This cold wave predicted for Tuesday was verified to a considerable extent, but it turned warm at once and melted for 24 hours. Another cold wave was looked for yesterday, though the mercury didn't get below 28°.

The Columbia Spectator says: "The location of the Cumberland railroad has now been completed from Stanford to this place, and Capt. Spradlin is engaged in making a map of the line. His estimates of the cost of the line, which were carefully made, show that the road could be constructed cheaply."

The supervisors made a net increase over the assessor's books of $60,000 worth of property, which at 67 cents on the hundred amounts to $40,200. As their pay for the entire time they were at work is but $80, it will be seen that they earned their money handsomely.

Col. CRADDOCK, who remembers it well, says that the year 1816 was a year without a summer. The winter preceding it was so exceedingly mild that fires were scarcely necessary, about such a winter, apparently, as the present one has been so far. In 1816 there was snow and ice in June, July and August, and scarcely any crops raised.

There is nothing new in the petty fight against Mrs. Courts over the post-office. The one or two who opposed her recognizing the hopelessness of their cause, and the justice of Mrs. Courts, have about concluded that Mr. Harrison may issue her the commission to hold the office to which he had appointed her with the concurrence of the Senate.

C. R. H.—Capt. W. H. Spradlin was here yesterday with his completed profile of the Cumberland River railroad from Rowland to Columbia. It shows a first rate line with no grade heavier than six feet to the mile and that only at one point. Much of it is level and can be built at $1,000 a mile and not a mile at liberal estimate will cost over $23,000, making the average for getting the road in shape for the ties not exceeding $6,000 from here to Columbia. With the right-of-way secured there will be no trouble in getting capitalists to build the road and the captain and others interested are in high feather over the prospect.

There is nothing more delightful than the assembling of young folk and that of Wednesday evening with Misses Mattie and Maggie (twins) to meet Miss May Turner, of Richmond, was no change from the general rule, save, if possible, to the better. The elegant hostesses had invited a number of their friends and joyfully did they entertain them. The hours were from 8 to 12, during which time that hospitable home was a scene of brilliancy and joy long to be remembered by the society people of Stanford. Miss Turner, who is one of Richmond's prettiest, added greatly to the pleasure of the occasion and impressed all as being the possessor of rare beauty and accomplishments. Misses Portwood, of Texas, and Tisdell, of Hustonville, were the young ladies present from a distance.

—The marriage of Wm. E. Perkins, the clever merchant at Bee Lick, to Miss Alice Denison at Lebanon occurred Wednesday and the happy pair passed up to his home that afternoon. The Lebanon Standard says: "Miss Denison was cashier of the dry goods firm of Messrs. J. G. Phillips & Co., and numbers her friends only by the limit of her acquaintances. She is one of Lebanon's prettiest young ladies and Mr. Perkins has won for his bride one who will be a companion of his joys and a sharer of his troubles."

—In Cincinnati feeding cattle are far short of the demand at 3½ to 3¾. Other grades run from 1½ to 4½. Hogs are stronger at 3½ to 3.80 and so are sheep at 2½ to 5½.

—It is now almost certain that the Versailles fire, which burned Bell Boy and 42 other fine horses, was started by an incendiary, but the guilty scoundrel is not known.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

PUBLIC SALE

JACKS, JENETS

And Horses.

I will sell publicly at Mt. Sterling, Ky., on Friday, February 14, 1890,

Five Jacks, 20 Jennets and about 32 head Horses. The Jacks include one 2-year-old, two yearlings and two weanlings. One of the weanlings is top. Berdau, the other by the great Alexander.

The Jennets include Imp. Zalmia, the dam of Lordaux, and in foal to Alexander since last April. She is a very fine animal and her produce by Alexander is sure to be very superior. In the lot of Jennets there is nothing over 10 years old and nothing old enough but what has produced a colt. Seventeen of these Jennets have been bred to, I think, as good a Jack as lives, Alexander, and I think 14 of 15 of them are in foal.

Among the Horses is Prince Archie 7½, a standard bred trotter, 15½, hands high, 3 years old, a fine mover, sound in every respect and a show horse in any country. Eagle Denmark, black, 15½, hands high, 4 years old, sound, a natural saddle horse head and tail in right place, very handsome.

Fusion Jay, good size, coming a year old, a natural saddle horse, good style, by the great Echo, who sold for $5,500, out of fashion by Beauty.

Two half-bred Percheron stallions, coming 3-year-olds, good ones.

Six 3-year-old half-bred Percheron geldings, fine size and ready for work.

Several grade mares, 1½ mile fillies by Mambrino Forest, out of good mares.

Besides, a number of 2 and 3 year mares and horses. For any information address me at Mt. Sterling, Ky. Catalogue of stallions Jacks and Jennets can be had on application by January 27, 91.

MY GARRET HOME.

There is strength for the arm 'mid the tolls of the day,
And content for the mind in the visions I see,
Of a love-lighted garret room, down by the bay.

And the dear ones that share it with me.
When at nightfall I turn from my labors and cares,
There is a heaven that beckons me heart to heart to the bay.

And the thought of it quickens my step un-awares,
And shortens the distance for me.

Though its walls may be guileless of pictures or pains,
And its furniture meager and aged and quaint,
'Tis a home and a haven for me.

There is peace in my garret-room, wedded to ease,
And grateful contentment in fitting degree;
And glad contentment in fitting degree;
That are sweeter than riches to me.

There is truth in my garret, ah! how low so rare,
Let the rich have their gold, our wealth is in these;
Life's fragrances are priceless, then, being true.

Close companionsed with me, and with mine,
Let the earthly disdains, what care we for these;
God smiles on our garret room down by the bay.

And even our trials are hallowed with bliss,
In the home that's a heaven to me.

FITTING HERSELF IN.

How Alice by Noble Efforts Became Self-Supporting.

"Well, there's one thing certain," said Alice Barnes, "I'm not likely to get much unless I get it for myself. And there's another thing very certain, and that is, how I'm to do it. I've thought and thought about it, and the more I think, I don't see my way. All the wise folks nowadays are writing and talking about girls doing for themselves. They say, 'Find out what you can do best, and then do it.'"

"But I can't do any thing best—that is, any of the things that people can make a living at. I can't teach, and I can't write stories, nor do astonishing things. I can only do the common every-day things, and father wouldn't let me go away from home to do those, even if I wanted to, which I don't."

Alice was situated exactly as a great many young girls find themselves. The oldest girl in a large family with a slender income, she had picked up a moderate amount of schooling and had done plenty of work. She could play a little, paint a little, and sew and cook a great deal. The younger children, for whom she had given willing service, were now growing old enough to assume their own shares of the household burdens, and Alice began to find time to think of things which she wanted, and things which she would like to do if only she knew how.

"I want more books, and I want more clothes, and father has enough to do without my looking to him. Oh, dear! I wish I had been brought up to some thing regular to do, but how could I be?"

With a tender thought of the toll-woman mother, whose right hand she had been all through those years of struggle, she took up a monthly magazine which had strayed into her way.

"This is just the kind of a thing I'd like to take. It's full of good talk about girls helping themselves; and ten to one, before the year was out, I might get some suggestion that would show me a way. But I couldn't afford it any more than I could fly."

In turning over the advertising pages, her eye fell upon the terms for subscription.

"And one to take better-up of the club. There, now, I might try that. I could do any amount of walking about and talking. Five subscriptions and I should have it. It's no harm trying, anyway."

To think and to act meant one with Alice, and it was not long before she was entering the house of one of her neighbors in the little rambling country town.

"May I come in?" she asked, peering at the door.

"Oh, dear, yes, of course you can. Miss Alice, if you'll only excuse the moss I'm in. I sat aside my other work today to see if I couldn't fix over the children's last summer hats. My mother costs so much, you know, when there's four of 'em, and myself, too, though every body knows I don't spend much on myself. But the girl is getting a little fussy since they've grown so big, and it's hard to suit 'em any more, and the same way with these dresses. They want more things about 'em, and I'm satisfied no more with Jane Ann Perry's work—that just does plain sewing—but thinks they ought to have a regular dress-maker. At a dollar a day! Now, look here at this."

With all her sympathy for Mrs. Drake's perplexities, Alice could not resist smiling at her wooden arrangement of ribbons and fabrics.

"Let me see if I could twist that into any better shape," she said, taking the hat out of Mrs. Drake's hands.

"Oh, you're so good, Miss Alice. There now—if you haven't the real milliner touch, some folks can do anything they set their hands to. I don't a bit of knack myself."

"Oh, I've had to have a knack," said Alice, laughing. "I have a time at home to do for. Mother never has time for such work like you. But don't you think some body like this would help you on such things, Mrs. Drake?"

"It gives a lot of information about doing things at home."

"Bless your heart, Miss Alice! I never have a moment for reading, even if I could afford the money, and I can't. But I do hope you'll have good luck. My aunt says that hat look just like a new one!"

"Yes, that looks just like it," said a half-grown girl, just entering the room with a new coat and a discontent on her pretty face. "I'm going to wear this dress to school my mother."

"Why not?" asked Mrs. Drake.

"The girls laugh at it. They say that looking up in the back looks like a plowed field."

"Dear me! I worked and fussed half a day over that," said Mrs. Drake, looking ruefully at the expanse of unadorned puffs. "I couldn't make head or tail of how that bought pattern meant 'on to go.'"

"Blip them out, Katie," said Alice, "and I can drap it for you in a few moments, if you'll let me."

"Now, did you ever?" exclaimed Mrs. Drake, as, under Alice's deft fingers, a few graceful loopings took the place of the puffs. Then, with directions for a little pressing, she said good-bye, amid a shower of admiring thanks from mother and daughter.

Alice took her way to the house of young Mrs. Garde, who was one of her good friends.

"Yes, Alice, I'll take the look. I'd take a dozen looks if they would show me any way to make things a little smoother around my inside. My hands are so tired with these two children that I have no time to see to things in the kitchen; and I don't believe things would be much better. Why, living the fairest kind of a life, Frank is half sick most of the time, and I'm beginning to think it's the wretched cooking. How can a man live on poor food all the time and be well? It's sour one week and heavy the next; and that's a sort of the variety we have."

"Too bad!" said Alice. "I wish with all my heart I could get you a good girl."

"You can't. I've seen her the entire country. Mother has sent two or three out from the city in the last year, always got homesick and so on. I see nothing but roses, unless I see the prospect of being no less a domestic. I don't feel so good as I used to feel. You will never make such a fortune when you come to the real duties of life."

"But, Alice, I'm not shaking my head. Why, I was just making up my mind that I'm good for nothing. I can do plenty of things, but I can't see the kind that I can make my living by, unless I go regularly and live out, and I don't want to do that. I have a good home."

"Of course not. It seems a pity," said Mrs. Garde, with a sigh. "I wish just such a girl as you couldn't be fitted in somehow to places where they are needed."

"Oh, don't put a 'sack' on me," said the mistress of the house, at which Alice smiled.

"Why, Mrs. Warner, what is the matter?" asked Alice in concern, as that lady, after placing a chair for her, sat down and burst into tears.

"Oh, it's my eyes trouble me again. Your book would do me good unless you came and read it to me. And books are not the worst part of it, although it's hard enough not to be able to read. But look at that mending-basket, piled up with two weeks' mending. I try to do a little bit at a time, but it hurts my eyes so I can't go on, and the doctor says they will never get well unless I give them perfect rest. Why, she said, half laughing, 'I had to put the children's clothes on this morning where the buttons were off.'"

"Never mind the pins, but do take care of your eyes," said Alice. "It's real trouble, and I'm so sorry for you. Let me read you one of these stories. Or, perhaps, you would rather I did some of this mending. Do let me help you a little. It wouldn't take me very long to do that whole pile."

"Of course, it wouldn't. You are so quick and handy. How fortunate you are, Alice, eyes and strength, and so bright and smart. You can do anything you want to do. Yes, you may do it if you'll let me pay you for it. And you don't know what I'd do if I could. No, you shan't touch them unless you'll agree to it."

"It's just the kind of work you can't get any body to do," continued Mrs. Warner, Alice laughingly consented, and settled herself at work. "I sent for Sarah Campbell, the other day, to come and do my mending, and she said that she would come in these weeks. Sarah's always engaged, Alice. Why, the reason, I wonder, that you and I folks do the little mending, is that we have you need them most."

Alice walked home with some new ideas in her head.

"I haven't made up my head, but I wonder if I haven't done better than that. I believe it's just as they say, there's enough to do of what I can do if it only could be fitted in. I'm going to try if I can do it in some way."

A week later she said:

"Neither, I'm going to work."

"I suppose so. You're always at work."

"But I mean I'm going to earn my own living."

"Not away from home?"

"Well, partly."

"Alice, you can't. Haven't I often said you shouldn't go away as long as there is a home for you?"

"Don't the friends, mother," said Alice, laughing. "My going won't be serious. I'm going two days in the week to Mrs. Garde's to make and to wind up her mending, so that it will run smoothly through winter. I'm going one day every week to Mrs. Warner's to mend her up, and half a day to Mrs. Drake's, when she wants me to be hat-trimmer, dress-trimmer, and touch-up in general. Do you think that what I can do at home the rest of the time will pay for my board and lodging?"

"I think it will."

"What I can do at home, I'll do at home, and a good deal more. I'm self-supporting, for, when any of these are done with me, they will surely be another in whom I can fit in."

Said Mrs. Drake, in that happy tone.

"Some one has suggested that, instead of imitating the idea of building a tower higher than any other for the world's fair of 1893, the great idea be adopted of excavating a deep hole in the earth than has yet been made."

"Young lady to young man who has kissed her," said Mrs. Drake, very singularly.

"Young man—'Ah! Well, allow me to make it plural.'—Boston Budget.

STATUARY wrought in Italy after a model of an American artist may not be brought here free of duty as the production of an American artist. So has decided the Treasury Department.

Two BEATRICE (Neb.) men have patented a portable corn husker, which is drawn through the fields and husks the corn as clean as could be desired. It is claimed it will husk twelve acres a day.

A young man plowing on a ranch near Galt, Cal., found over sixteen hundred dollars. His employer kept all but twenty dollars of it, and left the plowman to plod his weary way in the field.

Many who had the little lamb died lately. Her name was Mary F. Sawyer and she was born eighty-eight years ago in Sterling, Mass. What became of the lamb history sageth not, but likely it is dead, too.

A CALIFORNIA paper relates that after the recent rain-storm many people of Angel's Camp, Calaveras County, got money enough for their Thanksgiving dinners by picking up gold in the streets and in the shallow streams.

While sitting at his desk in the library of the White House a few days ago the President was surprised at the intrusion of a big gray rat, who deliberately crawled upon a side table and dragged off a piece of fruit which had tempted him from his hiding-place.

A FIELD of asbestos, which is pronounced the largest in the world, has been found and located in Wyoming, about forty miles south of Fort Snodgrass. The field covers 120 acres, and the asbestos is pronounced by experts as of good quality, with very little serpentine in it.

At the recent fire in Boston one firm was entirely cleaned out, not even a penholder left, and added to this the papers in their safe were also destroyed. Since the great Boston fire many firms have a duplicate of their monthly trial balance kept at the residence of some member of the firm.

The first mail time between oceans is now four days, twelve hours and three-quarters. Twenty-five tons of mail matter from New York City recently arrived at San Francisco in that time. Denver, Omaha, Cheyenne, Portland, all feel the influence of being nearer the East.

A CARAVAN of buffaloes for Austin Corbin's game forest on Crofton mountain lately passed through Claremont, N. H., en route to Newport, N. H. They came from "Buffalo Jones," who herds them at Winnipeg, Man., were worth $13,000 and were twelve days on the road. The man in charge reports they came peacefully and stood the journey well.

NATURAL gas has been discovered in Sonoma County, Cal., and in view of this cheap fuel the people of San Francisco see "in their mind's eye" that city developing into a great manufacturing center. The San Francisco Chronicle says that if there is abundance of the gas the fact "means more to San Francisco than half a dozen new transcontinental railroads."

AN artesian well flowing 4,000 gallons per minute was completed at Yankton recently. It is the largest in the Northwest, discharging nearly 36,000 barrels every twenty-four hours. There are now twenty-five artesian wells in that county whose combined capacity is nearly 50,000 barrels per day. The force of the water is so great that it is being used for motive power.

The geological survey, through Prof. W. H. Holmes, recently made some most important discoveries of Indian relics west of Washington on what is known as Piney Branch Hill. The find appears to be the remains of an Indian workshop for the manufacture of implements, weapons, etc. The spot has been excavated and implements have been found clear to the bed rock. The discovery is considered to be of the greatest importance to archaeologists.

Three Australians who are walking across the American continent reached St. Paul, Minn., from Tasmania a few days since. They are on a tour of the world from Melbourne on a wager that the tour can not be made in eight months. The conditions of the bet are that every appliance may be used for traveling after reaching New York, but the journey across North America must be made on foot. The bet is for $3,000, and the pedestrians are due at the Auckland Club in Melbourne just eight months from the date of their departure. The travelers are in good health and confident of success.

GASTRONOMICAL GRINS.

EVIDENCE of terrapin unsophistication is failure to consume the eggs.

DIAMOND-BACK terrapin probably came under the head of brilliant gastronomy. It is believed that cold fried oysters will sometimes induce a man to commit suicide.

AN American plum pudding made in an English mold is just like the rose under another name.

JOKE based on one oyster in a stew and disasters incident to the carving of a duck are in annual circulation.

CONSUME, as a name, continues to cover enough hot water to float the Great Eastern, it being represented as soup.

In a plate of griddle cakes, the eater on top and the one next the plate are the ones best to avoid, for good and sufficient reasons.

ANYBODY can tell the difference between black and white, but he must needs be a common-sense in game who can tell by the eating a relish from a can-vass-back duck in close days of sumptuous gastronomy.

"Government's conglomeration" is a new name for hash among the fastidious whose gastronomic expense is confined to boarding-houses and restaurants. Inasmuch as the dish is even held to be a waste of time, "conglomerated" might do as well.
